An eye diagnosis raises one big question above all: will my pet keep their sight? These questions help you understand what is happening and the choices ahead, with room to write the answers down.

THE DIAGNOSIS AND THE SIGHT

What is the condition, is it painful, and what does it mean for my pet's sight, now and over time?

THE TREATMENT

What are the options (drops, surgery, watchful monitoring), and what does each aim to do? If there are drops, how many, how often, and for how long?

MONITORING, REFERRAL AND EMERGENCIES

Should we see an eye specialist? How often will we recheck or measure the eye pressure? What signs at home mean I should call urgently?

WORTH KNOWING

A referral to a veterinary ophthalmologist is normal for many eye conditions and no reflection on your vet. And a pet who does lose their sight can still have a full, happy life; the home-proofing sheet shows how.

Written and reviewed by Dr Alastair Greenway MRCVS and Claire Greenway BVM&S MRCVS. This sheet explains and records. It does not diagnose or prescribe. Always follow your own vet's instructions.

How to use. Fill in the top strip in the waiting room and write the answers as you go. Ask plainly about the sight; it is the question that matters most to you.
